Extra Edition of 'Sheaf' Raps Bill on Japanese-Canadians

Saskatoon And Regina Blanketed By 'Extra'

Saskatchewan Claims Minority Rights Violation Pends in Bill 15

Saskatoon, Dec. 5.—(CUP)—Definite action in the Japanese-Canadian question was taken in the University of Saskatchewan yesterday, when The Sheaf, student publication of the University, issued an extra edition protesting the "threatened violation of minority rights" if Bill 15 passes its third reading in the House of Commons.

The Sheaf scored the power given by the bill to the governor-in-council, strongly objecting to the clause enabling him to deal with the "entry into Canada, exclusion and deportation and revocation of nationality," which clause the paper claimed would be dangerous to national unity.

Regina and Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, were flooded with copies of The Sheaf's strong protest of what they considered a most unfair treatment of the Japanese-Canadians which will take place in the form of deportation to Japan and cancellation of Canadian citizenship rights upon the passing of the bill.

In the same edition, the press was lashed for its laxity in informing the Canadian people of the implications of the Revocation Bill if it passes its final reading before the House.

It will be remembered that at McGill the question of the Japanese-Canadian deportation question came before the Students' Executive Council and it was decided to table any further move by that body until some additional information had been gathered from authorities in Ottawa.

Last week at its regular meeting, the Council appointed a committee of two to speed up the gathering of information and to ascertain the "true status of the Japanese-Canadians." So far no further steps have been taken here and the question is still awaiting Council action, which is expected to be forthcoming at the next meeting of the Council on Wednesday, when a full-fledged report on the Council will be tabled and further action will be considered.

Film Society Movies To Be Shown Today

This afternoon between five and six the McGill Film Society will show three films in Room 250 of the Biology Building. These movies are open to all members of the University.

The three films are to be in technical colour on various forms of art. Rembrandt and his pictures are to be the first subject with a discussion on his great contribution to painting. The philosophy of Chinese painting and its expression in all forms of art will be dealt with in the second movie. These include the porcelain figures, ancient pottery, vases, bronze cookery pots and jade knives which all go into the wonder which is Chinese Art. The third movie is a pictorial story of the Canadian landscape. There will be no charge for admission, which is in accordance with the policy of the society.

'Resolved That Trend Towards Left Is Inevitable,' Debate Topic Tonight

Burlington Seeks Second Victory Against McGill

International debating returns to the McGill University campus tonight when a local team and one from the University of Vermont will discuss the important topic "Resolved that the trend towards the left in world politics is inevitable." This debate will be run off in the Union Ballroom beginning at 8 p.m.

The style of debate to be used in this evening's contest will be new to many McGill students in that the American system will be used throughout. This system includes prepared speeches of ten minutes length with rebuttals of five minutes duration immediately succeeding them.

Sherwin Raymond and Conrad Shatner of McGill will oppose the topic. Their opponents on the Burlington team will be Eileen Pickett and Stanley Golden. This will not be the first time that the two universities have debated this year. A few weeks ago the McGill team of Ted Hugesson and Conrad Shatner was defeated in Burlington by the Vermont team of Mildred Trachtenburg and Leona Felix. The McGill squad upheld the topic "Resolved that the foreign policy of the United States should be directed towards the establishment of free trade among the nations of the world."

This debate was tempered when the Burlingtonians continued by beating Middlebury and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Nevertheless this is the sole defeat McGill debaters have suffered this year and a strong attempt is being made to reverse the decision in the contest which is to be held this evening.

Isadore Rosenfeld will act as the chairman for the second debate to be held at McGill this year. An impressive panel of judges has been named which includes Professor D. D. Clark, the assistant registrar of Sir George Williams College, Mr. N. Jacobs, K.C., noted Montreal barrister, and Mrs. E. Norrie, the educational reporter of the Montreal Gazette.

A special invitation has also been extended by the debating Union Executive to the various political clubs on the campus. It was felt by the Executive that the topic under discussion is of world interest and they are requested to come out and take part in the discussions which are to follow the debate.

N.F.C.U.S. NEWS

Reports of the progress of the different committees were discussed at a meeting of the panel chairmen yesterday, and there were two important points brought up:

First, that although clubs and undergraduate societies were co-operating, the student body as a whole was under the impression that the committee meetings were open only to official club representatives. The committee pointed out that all students interested in any of the topics under discussion are welcome to attend.

Second, that all clubs and societies are urged to submit resolutions and suggestions on topics that they feel the NFUCS should consider, but that are not covered by the four existing committees.

NATIONAL UNITY

Ten reports on National Unity were assigned at the final organizational meeting held last night in the Grillroom of the Union. These reports which will be discussed at next Tuesday's meeting, will cover the main sources of disunity in Canada—namely economic, constitutional, and cultural. To be based on factual evidence for the most part, statistics and accepted authorities, the panel discussions will attempt to establish Quebec's position in the national picture. It is expected that other universities will follow a similar pattern for their respective provinces.

EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITIES AND FACILITIES

The next meeting of the Educational Opportunities and Facilities panel will take place at 7 p.m. today in the Union Music Room.

NFCUS CONSTITUTION

All members of the NFUCS Constitution Panel are asked to call for a copy of the NFUCS constitution at the SCM house today in order to prepare for tomorrow's meeting at 5 p.m. in the Union Boardroom.

VETERANS REHABILITATION

The next meeting of the Veterans Rehabilitation panel will be held tomorrow at 1 p.m. in the officers' mess of the Sir Arthur Currie Gym.

Athletics Festival Saturday Night Will Feature Dance, Basketball, Gymnastics, Other Contests

When the basketball game with Clarkson College of Technology is over on Saturday night, the Gymnasium floor will be cleared for dancing to the music of Don Cameron's orchestra. The dancing is to begin at 8 p.m.

This event, which will be stag or drag, is part of an athletics festival which will consist of, in addition to the dance and the game, a gymnastic display; and a waltz and jitterbug contest. The gymnastic display will be presented under the directorship of Em Orlick and will entail work on the parallel bars.

Tickets for the event may be obtained for 50 cents at the Tuck Shop, the Arts building, the Engineering building, the Canteen at Dawson College, and certain of the students.

This dance is the third in a series of activities sponsored by the Red and White society of McGill University.

Voting Will Take Place For Faculty Delegates To Executive Council

Faculty Polling Booths Situated In Principal Campus Buildings

Elections for Faculty representatives to the Students' Executive Council of the University, only student government organization on the campus, will take place tomorrow between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. in all faculties with the exception of Law, Theology and Dentistry, where nominees Daniel Doherty, Donald Noseworthy and John McCarthy were elected by acclamation.

COUNCIL FUNCTION

Composed of eight faculty representatives and four ex-officio members, the Council is the ultimate authority in student government affairs subject to censure only from the Students' Society. Ex-officio members are: The President of the Students' Society, a body which includes as its members all full undergraduate students at McGill; the president of the McGill Union; the President of the Women's Union; the Editor-in-Chief of the McGill Daily.

Elected to deal with all matters regarding student financial questions, subsidizing of Council-controlled clubs and societies, general discipline and conduct of undergraduates and general representation of McGill students to the general public, the Council is the sole organ of student-government permanently in session.

ELECTION DETAILS

Candidates for election are as follows: Arts and Science: Jonathan Ballon, Vincent Goring; Commerce: William J. Reid, Michael W. Townsend, Peter Turcot; Engineering: Alec Ross, John Switzman; Medicine: Harold Ames, R. W. Black; R.V.C.: Hedwig Brown, C. Rae Hunter.

Men students in the Faculty of Arts and Science, the M.S.P.E., and the School of Commerce will vote in the Men's Smoking Room in the Arts Building; women students in Music and the M.S.P.E., and all residents at R.V.C., Strathcona Hall and McLennan Hall—in R.V.C.; women students in Architecture, Engineering and Science not living in the above-mentioned residences—in the Chemistry Building.

Women students in the Library School, Commerce and Arts, not in the residences mentioned above—in the Women's Common Room of the Arts Building; women students in Physiotherapy, Medicine and the School for Graduate Nurses, not living in the residences mentioned above, as well as men students in first, second or third year Medicine will cast their ballots in the Medical Building; men students in Engineering and Architecture—in the Engineering Building.

The polls at Dawson College will be in the Victory Loan Office in the north-west wing of Dawson Hall. It will be open from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

PLATFORMS

The Platforms of tomorrow's election candidates will be found on page four.

Council Meeting Prepares Change In Constitution

At a meeting devoted entirely to the revision of the McGill Students' Society's constitution, the Students' Executive Council last night dealt with further points of revision which are to be forwarded to the joint Senate-Council committee on the constitution which will draw up final plans for presentation to the Students' Society for approval.

A previous special six-hour meeting had been held last Saturday afternoon, at which the primary points of revision were dealt with. Council members have felt for a considerable time, it was learnt, that the Students' Society's constitution, drawn up at a time when there were some 1,800 students at McGill can never hope to prove efficient for present conditions, when registration figures show an increase of more than 3,500 over the previous total.

Faculty representation was dealt with in detail at last night's meeting of the Council and proposals were heard for an extension of the franchise to several Faculties which hitherto had not had an independent representative. The general consensus of opinion at the meeting, The Daily learnt, was, that such a step should be taken at the earliest possible time. It was pointed out, that such revisions would of course not be in time to affect the election of Council members which is taking place tomorrow, but would be in effect by the end of the present session, if both Senate and Students' Society found them to be satisfactory.

Political Group To Hold Meeting

"The History and Policy of the Progressive Conservative Party, from Port Hope to Today" will be explained by Mr. Ivan Sabourin, K.C., a leading member of the party in Quebec, at 8 p.m. this evening in the Union Grill Room.

This discussion will mark the first open meeting of the Progressive Conservative Club, and has been arranged by the executive of the Club to enable McGill students to study the background of current political affairs, especially those students who are planning to attend the session of the Mock Parliament to be held next week.

It has been stressed that all students are welcome whether or not they belong to the party.

Campus Characters Express Their Views, Weird Theories Rife

By JOHN FETHER.

What is it? Everyone has his pet theory about the pile of earth and rubble on the lower playing field.

A Redbird assured us that it was the bottom half of a monster ski-jump, which will start from the roof of the Redpath Museum. We told him to go back to the Pub and have one on us.

Engineers, never shrinking violets, were quick to express the opinion that it was a resting place for plumbers early Sunday morning. A Co-Ed suggested that it was to be a dressing room for those well known campus characters, "The Three Bares".

First-year President Resigns From Post

St. Johns, December 5.—(Special to The Daily.)—Ward A. Smyth, Dawson B.Sc. I president, announced his resignation today to St. Johns first year students. He said he would still act as class president in conducting the Friday election for Arts and Science representatives to the McGill Students' Council, as well as the nominations and election of a student to replace him.

In a statement made to an estimated 400 students in the Dawson Theatre, Smyth explained that he could no longer continue as class president on account of "the pressure of exams".

It was also announced that a new president would be elected in ten days, and that nominations for this position containing 20 signatures will be accepted from today on.

Principles of College Education Are Discussed at Douglas Hall

By MINNIE GOLDSTEIN

At a fireside forum in Douglas Hall last night, Dr. F. Cyril James held an informal talk on "The Aims and Principles of a University Education." "Education is a purely personal process—measured in terms of the mental development of the individual," he stated.

Dr. James stressed three goals of a college education. "First we must facilitate the development of the man in such a way as to make him a good citizen, and a useful member of the social organization in which he lives."

Secondly, the individual must be taught to earn his living and to make a material contribution to his community. "These two aims emphasize the duty and the responsibility of the individual to his fellow-man," stated the speaker.

"The third aim," continued Dr. James, "is to teach the man to carry on his mental and spiritual development by himself, and to be the master of his soul."

To make a university education more conducive to the individual's needs, Dr. James presented two suggestions: the provision of a uniform two-year course following junior matriculation, and the abolition of exams and compulsory attendance during this time. (The latter proposal elicited a loud "Hurrah" from one student.) These plans would provide the student with an opportunity to get a much broader education before proceeding to specialization.

"The important thing in education," stated Dr. James in conclusion, "is that which you carry away with you at the end of it."

Now What, McGill?

The facts are on page one. We hope that all students have read the story. We are of course referring to the account of the publication of an extra edition of the University of Saskatchewan's "Sheaf", which was devoted to a protest of the passage by the House of Commons in Ottawa of Bill 15 regarding the deportation from Canada of Canadian nationals of Japanese origin.

It would be idle to speculate what prompted the editors of The Sheaf to publish such an issue. There seems little doubt but that such a course was only followed after considerable thought had been given to the question of the legality and justice of such an action. Clearly Saskatchewan students have reached the conclusion that the action contemplated by the Dominion Government would be entirely unjust and that furthermore it would be against all the principles of democracy and human decency.

Here at McGill the matter came up for discussion some weeks ago, and at that time we advocated, along with the Students' Executive Council, that no action should be taken by the students of the University until all the facts of the case had been ascertained. There could be, we believed, some good reason other than pure racial discrimination, which might be at the bottom of the Dominion Government's plans. The students agreed with our point of view at that time, and no Students' Society meeting was called; then the matter was left to the Council. That body then wrote to members of the Government and leaders of the various political parties at Ottawa, asking for some further information on the subject.

Weeks went by, and there was no further move. Then letters began to trickle in to the Council from Ottawa. All of them so far as we know, sidestepped the issue completely. One government department referred to another, which in turn never even bothered to answer. Opposition leaders' secretaries claimed that they simply did not know "what was really going on."

With matters in such a state, the Council moved on to appoint a committee of two to investigate the Japanese-Canadian deportation question further, with definite instructions to report to the Council at its next meeting, Wednesday, December 12. That is all we have done at McGill.

If the students of Saskatchewan went ahead and took an action which could only be the result of a campus earthquake at McGill, if they showed the progressive and fair attitude which is supposed to be the inherent spirit of University students, if we are left "holding the bag" with no further action than a feeble letter of enquiry to our credit, we, the students of this University, along with this paper's past editorial policy can only blame ourselves and hang our heads in shame. We advocated caution, and many students agreed with us. We thought that this was the right way to go about this problem. But we were wrong, and have no compunctions about admitting it. While we sat back and did nothing, Bill 15 quietly went through two readings in the House of Commons, and with a few exceptions press and radio hushed up the whole affair so much, that now we are faced with these bitter facts: if the Bill is passed in a third reading, receives the assent of the Senate and the Governor-General, it becomes law. It becomes law without a single utterance of protest from the students of McGill.

There can be no doubt in our minds that Bill

For those who wish to obtain a University degree, there are naturally several obstacles or impediments:

But why, of all the students who seek advice, should they send me only the intellectual sediments? When I say, "If you want to ascend the ladder of learning, we must start you off aright on the bottom most rungs,"

And that means you will have to acquire a knowledge of one of the Classical tongues,"

Then the more or less elegant Miss regards me as if she'd been spat on.

And says, "I don't want to do Latin,"

So I say, "If you will not take Latin, you'll have to take Greek,"

And the only reply that I get is, as if I had pinched her, an anguished and agonized squeak.

Then she says, "If I have to take Latin, I suppose that I must, but it's something I greatly deplore. It's no good to me and why should I start it? I've never done any before."

And I say, "If you haven't, you can't, for there's no Latin here for beginners,"

And I struggle to get the thing straight and to pin down my problem and pin hers.

I touch for a minute or so on the standard Arts degree needs

How the regulations are fixed, like the laws of the Persians and Medes.

"Can I get exemption?" "No." "Others can." "Who?"

"A friend of my brothers."

"If you don't believe me, you can ask our Professor Carruthers."

"If you don't believe him, ask the Dean, the Principal, the Chancellor and for all I care, the Visitor."

"Well," she said, "Is it a

"Thing worth trying?" I said "No, if you want my advice, give it up and attempt a B.Com."

"Oh," she says, "I wouldn't do that without talking to my Dad and Mom."

"Fine," I said, "Go and do it," but no, first she wants to hear if she went into Commerce

What she needed and could she get credit for evening work in a Secretarial School if she brought her diplomas.

I said, "If you take Commerce it is of paramount importance that you should take Accountancy."

And she said, "Why the paramountancy?"

I replied, "Well, it's there, and you would have to take also several things besides,

Look, my dear, you go out to Macdonald College and take what I hear is an excellent course for those about to be brides."

Then she said, "But I am not about to be a bride" and I said "That, at least, I can well understand,

And my opinion is you would have a better chance in the vicinity of Guelph, or Verdun than in this part of the land."

So, getting desperate and willing to do anything that would cause her to vanish,

I wrote on the slip, "Exempted from Latin provided she passes in Spanish,"

And said "Good bye, take this, go downstairs, join the queue and hand it to Professor Hatcher."

But I wish the University would appoint a Public Executioner or some sort of Happy Dispatcher.

Time and Tide

Colonel Blimp

It is known that advertisers often have a low opinion of the public's intelligence, but the advertisements for "Colonel Blimp" are the most shocking proof of this we have had in a long time.

When "Colonel Blimp", a quiet, distinguished picture appeared in New York, a great deal of comment and criticism was aroused by advertisements showing things that never happened in the movie. Not only did that harm the picture, but it attracted a class of people who expected what the advertisements showed—and who naturally were disappointed, and did not like it.

Last night one of the New York advertisements appeared in a Montreal paper. We had hoped that we would be spared this insult to our intelligence, and to a truly fine, dignified motion picture.

It is little more than a manifestation of the germs of fascism. This is the way it begins: racial intolerance, blanket laws empowering governments to do whatever they please with legally naturalized nationals, outrages against the "injustice" of the presence of men and women of alien origin in a province, the formation of leagues to "protect" the future of a country, the sandwiching of blatant reactionary nationalism between high-sounding phrases of nothingness... this is the way it begins. This is the way it began in Germany and all over the world where fascism raised its bloody head... IT HAS HAPPENED RIGHT HERE IN CANADA...

What are we going to do? Stand by and shake our heads in abject horror or undisguised disinterest? Are we going to forget about the six years of war which were fought to the tune of the prayers of starving, tortured human beings waiting weakly for a better, a freer day, are we going to forget about the promises we made in the Charter of the United Nations, a Charter on which the ink of many a country's newly added signature is hardly dry? Or are we going to sit up, take notice and realize that the principles we fought for, the promises we made, all these are being belied under our very noses by the government we elected to be just, fair and democratic?

Bill 15 got as far as it did by constant agitation. At Saskatoon they did something which may be constructive. It is up to McGill students to decide what they want their Students' Council to do. The Council members' names are available to those who do not know them, and those who do, can lead the way. The members should be contacted so that our student government can take suitable steps. A half-hearted meeting of the Students' Society will not do the trick... we found that out before. But the Council can do something constructive and let the students know what they believe the right course should be, and then action can be taken.

We made a mistake in letting things go so far, but that should not stop us in our future plans. Action is needed, soon. What now, McGill?

THE DAILY MEETS

Professor Courrier

—by Sorryl Cohen

A booming cheerful "Entrez", But despite the conditions, a great deal of practical research was carried on. It was here that Prof. Joliet-Courrier discovered artificial radio activity, for which he received the Nobel prize.

Prof. Courrier went on to describe the College de France in Paris. "It is an institute 'extra-ordinaire', he stated. The college, which is the only existing one of its kind in the world, gives an amazingly liberal education. Here the students receive no degrees, they do not enroll in courses, but come and go as they please. Some of the lectures are given to as few as three or four people, while in others, the attendance reaches a thousand. Anyone from anywhere can go to the College de France; the only stipulation for entrance is interest.

The professors are chosen by an equally Bohemian method. No string of degrees is necessary; a man is elected to the staff merely if his work merits it. At present there are forty professors, thirty in the field of arts, and the remaining ten in science. "The keynote of the work at the college is freedom," said Prof. Courrier. "There we have complete liberty."

From Montreal Prof. Courrier plans to go to Quebec City, and thence to the United States where he will visit several leading universities, among them Harvard, Yale and Columbia.

When asked what his impressions were of Montreal, Prof. Courrier replied, "I am happy to be here; the taxi drivers, the hotel clerks—everyone speaks French."

Ghostly trees stand all about me.
Ghostly columns in the fog.
Fog flows softly all about me.
Winblown, softly swirls the fog.
Through the mists the rain is falling.
Through the branches to the ground.
Thirsty earth for more is calling.
Rain is falling all around.

Summer sunshine warms the woodland,
Warms the brake and warms the air.
Songs of birds make glad the woodland;
Happy he that wanders there.

I saw an empty hulk devoid of life and birth
He said
"Those wretched holes—that is your mangled earth."

I saw the world quake as a rocket struck the core
He said
"They've tried to break her power forevermore."

"But your enemies are lunatics and worse,"
He said
"To think that they destroy the universe."

I looked on a face whose eyes were dumb
"Why dead?"
And I saw the destruction that still was to come.

"This struggle breathes the everlasting man"
He said
"Who has opposed wrong since the world began."

"The graves of the earth, and the earth-graves of youth"
He said
"Are the beautiful terrible scars of truth."

DESTRUCTION

Here is a leaf, an ivy leaf, new-plucked,
Red with the tenderness of youth;
Here the stem, and here the spreading veins
That more sweet sap from darkness sucked
To feed the ever growing tips.
I pull it—look, it stretches—now it breaks,
Breaks in the tenderness of youth.
The soft and curling pieces tear again
In smaller fragments. So, alas, it takes
But one man's pleasure to destroy a leaf,
A life, a country or a world at peace.
But herein lies the difference: I'm Unpunished, who destroyed an ivy leaf.

L'ANCIEN REFRAIN...
Mary Turnbull.
I lost my love—the heavens wide
Turned black, suns reeled, stars were unruly;
With anguish in my heart I cried
"I know she doesn't love him truly!"
But she who'd won him by her charms—
That heartless siren, loved unduly—
Thought, safe within encircling arms,
I'm sure she never loved him truly."

Red and White Cagers Wallop U. of M. 29-23 In Intermediate Match

Murray, Lefcoe, Beaugrand Star In Speedy, Action-filled Thriller

By GERALD FINKELSTEIN

Showing all around superiority in every field, the McGill Intermediate hoops last night soundly trounced the previously undefeated University of Montreal quintet by the score of 29-23. Spirited by the play of Murray, Lefcoe, Beaugrand and Davine, the Red and White cagers produced a sustained offensive which found most of the play in the U. of M. zone.

Although the boys from the other side of the Mountain were outscored, they rallied strongly in the last half after garnering only six points in the first. Beland and Legare, with eleven and nine points respectively, were the key men for the orange and blue; and who, along with Trotter, accounted for all of the squad's points.

The scoring was opened in the first half with a basket by Beland for the U. of M., which was quickly countered by a hop-step-and-jump from the hands of Davine. From this point on, play saw-sawed back and forth with McGill scoring two baskets for every one the Montreal cagers put in; and a close defence by both teams slowed up the play considerably. A basket by Beaugrand, followed by a clean swift and free throw by Lefcoe, left the score at 15-6 at the end of the first half.

Play speeded up considerably in the second half in a wide open game, which featured two quick successive baskets by Legare. This was followed by a seemingly impossible shot from MacTavish, which saw him whoop the ball from the ozone and through the cordage in a perfect play. An individual shot by Murray netted five points, after a start-life pivot by Lefcoe. Beland rallied for the visitors with three baskets and a free throw. The game ended at a speedy clip with first Murray and then Legare splitting the cordage to make a final score of 29-23.

Target Trifles

By Trigger

Good news for members of the Club—we've finally got more ammunition — 15,000 rounds to be exact. This means that you now won't be quite so restricted in your use of it while practising. Unfortunately, however, the President, Art Bourke, has said that it is impossible to take any more new members as yet.

We've shot two competition matches in the last two weeks, gaining one point in the match against the Traffic Division of the Montreal Police, and four points in the one against the Imperial Frontiersmen. This latter was the first one in which McGill won all the obtainable points.

Plans are being made to appoint Range Officers who will be in charge of scoring, putting up targets and distributing ammunition on practice nights. In this way we hope to ensure observation of the range rules and prevent confusion. The following are the scores in the last two matches:

Garmaise Beats Smith In Ping Pong Tourney

The Ping Pong Tournament is continuing on its way rather leisurely with only one match played yesterday. This was a hectic five game affair between Garmaise and Smith in which Garmaise emerged the victor after a very lengthy afternoon's work. The scores were 21-16, 13-21, 21-16, 13-21 and 21-12. Due to the high reputation that Smith held before the match, it has been regarded as a minor upset, although Garmaise has fought his way through one other five game match in the Tournament. He now enters the third round.

The tournament has been lagging of late, but Manager Bud Marsh has given definite instructions that play is to be completed by the Friday, so that all who have entered in the tournament are advised to play off their matches or they will be disqualified.

MWSAA Sponsoring Games Night Tonight

"Games Night" a short informal party for McGill coeds, is to take place tonight in the R.V.C. Upper Gym starting at 7.30. This affair is being sponsored by the MWSAA, not only for the purpose of having a grand frolic but also to give the coeds an opportunity to become better acquainted. The program will consist of progressive games relays, etc. and refreshments will be served. The fun will end about 10.30.

Since some of the games will be strenuous, it is advisable to wear old clothes. There will be a small admission charge of 10c and all coeds are requested to bring a pencil. So, all women students remember: Tonight 7.30. R.V.C. Gym. 10c. Old clothes. Pencil. Games Night!

The Inside Dope

By J. J. PIPER

The author of this column is probably the worst skier ever to plow down a hill on his nose, but nevertheless he is still interested in this sport of the young and that is why we picked up our cars when an old gentleman friend of ours began reminiscing about the days when he and his friends skied for the first time in Canadian history.

Insofar as our friend can be certain, skiing became popular as a sport in Canada around Ottawa in the winter of 1877-78 when one of the Aides of the Governor General who had recently returned from duty in Norway began skiing on whatever hills there may be around our capital city. But, to his knowledge, skiing really commenced three or four years earlier in Gaspe, and it began in this way.

In the Fall of 1873 a Norwegian lumber ship sailed into Gaspe harbour to take on a load of lumber for Norway. Unfortunately for the captain and crew of this ship, they took too long to load up and they were frozen in. There was nothing that could be done about it, and since the harbour was well-protected from the Atlantic's wintry blasts, they were quite content to settle down in Gaspe for the winter,—to them it seemed quite a holiday.

While waiting out the winter the Norwegian sailors used to watch the young boys of the neighbourhood running around on their snowshoes through the woods. They were immediately reminded of their own boyhood pursuits and offered to teach the youngsters how to ski. The kids, among them my old friend, were glad to pick up anything, and soon learned how to ski and to make their own skis. We then asked our friend how this ski-manufacturing was done.

"Quite easy," he replied, "you simply get some narrow strips of ash and steam the ends, and when they are quite soft and pliable, you turn the ends up and then let the wood cool. They are left for three or four days to get quite set, and then you have a pair of skis."

This was quite amazing to us, and since then we have been keeping an eye open for any likely-looking ash trees.

SNOW-SHOE HARNESS

The harness they used was quite simple. Since they were quite experienced snow-shoers, they just transferred their harnesses from their snowshoes, put them on the home-made skis, slipped their moccasins into the harness and they were off. The lads had a great time skiing about for a while, and surprisingly enough, their skis rarely broke. But they soon lost the novelty of these long strips of ashwood and realized that they were no good for travel through the woods because they were awkward, so they reverted to their snowshoes. Skiing in Canada was then rather neglected until the aforementioned Aide de Camp of the Governor General came out from Norway.

CANOE CONSTRUCTION

These enterprising people of Gaspe were quite versatile when it came to making their own equipment, for they also made their own canoes. "Quite easy," said my friend. To build a canoe he claimed that all that is necessary are some lengthy strips of oak which are steamed to shape and fitted over one another in the same way as is seen in a dinghy. These are strengthened by ribs of ash and held by little brass rivets. They are very strong and excellent for carrying a load of furs on a long trip. If any of you are intending to go on a long trip through the fur-bearing country, we heartily recommend one of these canoes, they can bounce unharmed off the hardest of rocks. Unfortunately they are rather heavy for moonlit nights and what-not.

McGill Pucksters Practise Monday

Exhibition Contests Against St. Hyacinthe And Lachine Are Set

The next practises for the McGill Senior Hockey team are slated for Monday and Tuesday, December 10 and 11 between the hours of 5 and 6 p.m., on the Forum ice. All members of the team are urged to be present for these practises if possible.

Two exhibition games have been arranged for the Senior outfit, one out of town and the other locally. The first one is scheduled for Thursday, December 20th, against St. Hyacinthe on the latter's home ice. The second game is with the Lachine Hockey Team at the Lachine Arena on Friday, January 4th. Final arrangements concerning these two games are not yet complete but will be in the very near future.

Coch Dave Campbell announced last evening that there is still a place for any good hockey player on the team's roster and expressed the wish that those who have not yet tried out for a berth would do so without further delay. He emphasized the fact that the McGill squad could use such good men as Ken McAdam, Grant Morrison and Lynch. These well known hockey players, together with many others, have not put in an appearance at any practises, and, if they desire to play for McGill, would be most welcome.

All those interested are asked not to turn out to any practise without first contacting Frank Rogers at W1. 4254 and arrange for the practice they wish to attend through him.

Experience is a good thing, but do not buy more of it than you actually need.

Wrestling Team Trains for Meet

Intercollegiate Match Set for Feb. 22-23 At Queen's University

The date for the Intercollegiate Wrestling Meet has finally been set for February 22-23 at Queen's University. This is the first time that McGill Redmen will have a chance to compete against other colleges since the beginning of the war, and there is a great deal of interest and terrific competition among the members of the team to have the chance of representing their Alma Mater at Kingston. There will be an intermural championship on February 7th to take place at the athletic festival, and the Varsity team will be chosen from the winners of the meet.

Besides the two meets mentioned above, the team's coach, Frank Saxon, the Canadian Olympic Games wrestling coach, and the manager has arranged competition against the Y.M.C.A. teams and possibly against others. The teams outside competition starts next Tuesday, December 11th when McGill will be represented at the C.P.R. Provincial Novice Championship by able Joe (Doc) Sabbath and Manager Calderon. They will fight in 155 lb. and 145 lb. classes respectively.

Both the coach and the manager would like to see more students turn out for practises on Tuesdays and Fridays to improve competition and give everyone more practice for the Intercollegiate Meets. The fact that there will have to be representatives of McGill in each of the different eight weight divisions, gives an excellent opportunity to all beginners to be on the Varsity team this year.

Snooker Tournament Nearing Completion

There was only one game played yesterday in the Snooker Tournament when D. W. Mackenzie lost out to M. Tammaro after a very close match. Tammaro plays J. Leslie today at 1 p.m. Tammaro is a seeded player and is expected to go far this year, while Leslie has shown excellent form all through the tournament.

Tuesday Jimmy Gunn beat J. P. Goffon and faces Meek today at twelve o'clock. Gunn, after considerable practice in the arm is a seeded player, but his opponent is a very experienced man. Meek was runner-up in the tournament several years ago. The winner of this match enters the quarter finals.

Dawson Inter-Class Softball Nears End

The Dawson Inter-Class Softball League went into action again last night as Science II downed Science I by a score of 7-5. Science II, as a result of their win, are now four points ahead of their nearest rivals and have only two games remaining on their schedule. Bernie Davis was the hurler for the winners and has now led his team to three victories. Bill Fullerton pitched for the losers.

The League Play-offs are slated to start on December 13th and four teams are fighting for the runner-up spot behind Science II. Tonight, Engineering "A" will engage Engineering "B" while Science I will fight it out with the Married Men. The Married Men have a strong pitching staff in the persons of Turner and Dawson and will present a strong threat to their opponents.

The present league standing is as follows:
Team	P.	W.	L.	Pts.
Science II		4	0	8
Engineering "B"	..	3	2	4
Engineering "A"	..	3	2	4
Science I		3	2	4
Married Men		4	2	4

Red Water Polo Team Plays K. of C. Tonight

The McGill Water Polo team is scheduled to meet the highly rated Knights of Columbus squad tonight at 8.15 at the K. of C. pool. Tomorrow night they face Sir George Williams College. All players interested in playing are asked to get in touch with manager Peter Kellaway tonight at 8.15 sharp.

Next Wednesday McGill plays Montreal High School, who are the interscholastic champs. Later in the season the squad will travel to the U.S. to play some of the American colleges and on March the climax of the season takes place when the Redmen will make a bid for the intercollegiate title.

Among the veteran players of the team are Bob Tilden and Bob Mahon, of former Westmount High teams, Jeff Ince, H. Dale, J. Benjamin, R. Goldsborough, Young and Aronoff, all of whom will form the nucleus of the team. However, everyone will get a chance to play.

Practises will continue on Monday, Dec. 10, and every following Friday. Games are scheduled every week against the M.A.A.A., Y.M.C.A. and Y.M.H.A.

CANDIDATES' PLATFORMS

Arts and Science

Jonathan Ballon, B.Sc. III

Duties:
1. The Arts and Science representative to the Students Council has two main duties. (a) To represent and further the interests of the men in his faculty both on the campus and at Dawson. (b) To represent and further the interests of the university as a whole, as a representative of the highest student body on the campus.

The position is therefore an important one. Accordingly, the representative must be one of proven calibre.

How candidate judged

He should have the following qualities, (a) A well-rounded interest in all phases of student life, as evidenced by his consistent and active participation in the executive, academic, athletic, social and cultural program of the university. (b) An insight into and an appreciation of student problems, which can only be developed by working with varied campus groups and organizations. (c) The ability to cope effectively with these problems.

Conclusion

In a word, then, past activities are a more adequate indicator than any stirring platform of pretty promises. They indicate whether the individual has the interest to do the job, the requisite insight to see student problems as they really are, and the resources of experience and good judgment thereby attained, to attack them with vigour and success. Elect your representative accordingly.

Activities

My past activities are presented below for your consideration.
Secretary, McGill Union; Secretary, Arts and Science Undergraduate Society; Chairman, Reception Committee, Veterans and Freshmen; President, Freshman Year (Arts and Science); Football, Senior Squad (3 years); Hockey, Intermediate and Intramural (3 years); Interclass Hockey Manager; Intramural Athletics Council; Scarlet Key Society; Cosmopolitan Club, Study Group Leader; Film Society, Publicity.

Vincent I. Goring, B.A. III

The Students' Executive Council of McGill, as the governing body of McGill students, has a vital role to play in the next year. It must assume leadership in organizing students to cope with the many problems confronting them. The Council must be prepared to concern itself directly with the varied issues that arise throughout the scholastic year, rather than concentrating solely on their administrative duties.

The Arts and Science Representative should see to the planning of greater campus activity at Dawson College, paying regular visits to the Dawson campus to establish a closer connection between Dawsonites and McGill students.

2. Cooperate with the Veterans Society on such projects as maintenance Grants and Housing.

3. Investigate in what way difficulties arising from the lack of full educational facilities can be alleviated.

4. Bring home to Canadian students their responsibilities as members of the larger community by urging constructive policies in national affairs.

If elected I pledge myself to carry out these aims to the best of my abilities.

Commerce

William J. Reid, B.Comm. III

The Students' Executive Council is the main body of student government on the McGill campus. Its task is an important one, and it deserves the interest and cooperation of every student. I feel privileged to have been nominated to this position in the School of Commerce. Personally, I am averse, in stating my platform, to pledging myself indiscriminately to tasks which are largely impossible of fulfillment. However, in the event of my being elected to this post, I can promise in all sincerity to perform the implied functions to the very best of my ability.

In my opinion the functions of the faculty or school representative are mainly three in number: 1) To represent and have the interest of the faculty or school at heart in all discussion. 2) To well and adequately represent the opinion of the student body from which he is chosen. 3) To place before the council the opinions of said student body in regard to pertinent topics or subjects.

This in its essence is my platform. Activities: Scarlet Key Society, Secretary—Student Reception Committee, Manager—McGill Track Team for 1945, Students' Athletic Council, Class President, B. Comm. III, 1945, Political Economy Club.

Michael W. Townsend, B.Comm. III

First, I would like to thank those who nominated me for election as Commerce representative to the Students' Executive Council.

In that I have been away from McGill for the past two years, I might give a short personal history for the benefit of those who do not know me. I entered the University in the Fall of 1941, finished two years of Commerce, and then joined the R.C.A.F. in the summer of 1943. I was discharged last September and came back to college in October.

If I am elected, I will do my utmost to present the views of the Commerce Undergraduate Society to the Council, and see that they are carried out to the fullest possible extent. To do this, I plan to work in close liaison with the C.U.S. Executive. Also I will ensure that any problems of the Veterans' Society receive a just investigation.

In general, I would like to see closer touch kept with the other Canadian Universities by exchange of student opinions as well as inter-collegiate sports.

If one of my worthy opponents is elected, he may count on me for full co-operation with any of his tasks, for it is only by co-operation from all that the spirit of McGill is kept alive.

Peter Turcot, B.Comm. III

First of all I would like to thank all those who supported my nomination as Commerce Representative to the Student's Executive Council.

The position of Commerce representative to the Student's Executive Council is one of the more important positions on the campus, and as such should be assumed with a great deal of responsibility. It is my belief that the experience which I have accumulated in past years at McGill will enable me to execute the responsibilities of this position in a manner befitting it.

For this position it is very difficult to make any radical statements promising changes and improvements, however if elected it is certainly within my limits to promise that Commerce will be conscientiously represented on the Student's Executive Council. The greatly enlarged student enrolment this year has made it increasingly evident that the Commerce Undergraduate Society alone, or in conjunction with the Arts and Science Undergraduate Society should be permitted to hold a formal dance of their own in the years to come. Permission to hold such functions comes under the jurisdiction of the Student's Executive Council, and the Commerce representative as a member of this body should try to secure such a request. If elected I will do everything in my power to bring this about.

Activities: — 1944-45 Basketball Manager, Student's Athletic Council 1945: Chairman Student's Athletic Council, Football Manager, Advisory Athletic Board, Commerce Athletics Manager, Dates Committee.

Engineering

Alec Ross

The undergraduate governing body on the campus is Students' Executive Council. It is our voice to the Senate and to outsiders and McGill's undergraduate body is judged by its actions.

The Engineering Undergraduates Society has in the past achieved notable success in all their enterprises. The book service, the athletics program and the various social functions sponsored by its executive show that we have a "live wire" organization. Last year a survey was conducted by the E.U.S. of over 500 graduate Engineers asking them for their opinions of the courses they received at McGill and for suggestions for improvements in the curriculum. One of these suggestions, that of having mimeographed notes available for courses which do not follow a text book, is well on the way to becoming a fact.

The position of Engineering Representative to the Students Council entitles the man elected to a seat on both the Council and the executive of the E.U.S. and it will be part of his duties to help formulate their respective policies and see that they are carried out. He is the connecting link between the E.U.S. and the Council and is the Engineers' spokesman on this body.

If elected I will promote the interests of the Engineers to the best of my ability on the Council and will serve the E.U.S. as much as I can in any of their future activities. Use your ballot and remember that the man you choose will be YOUR representative to the Students Council.

John Swiftzman

It is of prime importance that the engineering representative be one who is keenly aware of the problems of engineering students and will give the engineering students effective representation.

The following are some of the more immediate questions to which I will give my concentrated attention:

1) Overcrowding of university facilities.

As a member of the S.E.C., I will propose that the S.E.C. take the initiative in setting-up Student-

Staff committees in each faculty to suggest practical measures to extend university-facilities immediately. It is of extreme importance that constructive Student opinion on these measures be continually available to the University authorities.

As a member of the Executive of the S.E.C. I will (a) propose that the E.U.S. take the lead in setting-up such Student-Staff committees in the Engineering faculty; (b) work with the Curriculum Committee on the E.U.S. to speed up the issuing of Mimeographed Notes, addition of more modern books to the library, the use of movies in lectures, etc.

2) Employment of Engineers.

Everyone of us is deeply concerned about work during the coming summer. As Engineering students, such work enables us to supplement our incomes, and to add practical experience to our university training.

As an immediate necessary measure, I propose that a Job Placement Bureau be established in the engineering faculty, composed of both staff and student representatives, and which will attempt to find jobs for all engineers on an equal basis.

3. Good Fellowship Between All Students, Veterans and Non-Veterans.

I want to stress the importance of developing further the amicable relations between veteran and non-veteran students. The S.E.C., in supporting and giving continuous assistance to the efforts of the veterans to solve the problems confronting them, can be the greatest single cementing factor.

4. Cooperating With Dawson.

Both the S.E.C. and E.U.S. should give active assistance to the Dawson College Students Council to have the $45 fee lowered and improve living conditions, study facilities and recreation for Dawson Engineers.

5. Representation to the Students Executive Council.

As at present constituted, representation is, to give examples, as follows: Eng. (800 students) — 1 rep; Theology (10) — 1 rep; Architecture (40) NO rep; Music — NO rep. I will propose that a system of proportional representation be adopted to ensure that all faculties are equitably represented.

Conclusion: For Adequate and Responsible Representation.

These are the things I shall try to accomplish. This is a practical program which can be attained with the support of all Engineering Students. If elected, I will regularly report back to you on the proceedings of the Students Executive Council at meetings of the E.U.S. In this manner, responsible and adequate representation can be assured.

Medicine

Harold Ames, Med. III

The Representative of the Medical Undergraduate Society on the Executive of the Student Council has two main tasks to fulfill. (1) He must indicate the opinion of Medical Students on matters affecting McGill students as a whole. (2) He must present and press for solution of problems confronting Medical Students in particular.

If elected, I propose to strive for action by the Council on the following matters which have been shelved, or side-stepped by the Council in the past: (a) the student housing problem, having special reference to the present difficulty experienced by many Veterans. (b) the problem of Canadian students of Japanese origin. (c) the investigation of possible Racial and Religious discrimination within our own University. Of specific interest to Medical students, I will work to (a) obtain co-ordination with the Veterans Society regarding additional grants for Veterans for books and instruments. (b) obtain clarification of the standing of the 40 additional Veterans being admitted to Med. I in January, and the position of the present students in that class as a result.

In the season '44-'45, I was on the executive of the McGill Debating Society, and of the McGill Camera Club. This year, I am on the Executive Council of the McGill Outing Club. I am prepared to devote the necessary time to effectively carry out the responsibilities associated with the office, for which I am a candidate.

R. W. Black

I am not trying to present to the students a platform of ideals and good wishes. My purpose for running for this office again is mainly to try and benefit the Medical Undergraduate Society, of which you are all members. Since I have had considerable experience with the present medical undergraduate problems and have helped to initiate a plan to solve these problems, I feel that an established member of the Student Executive Council could present such a plan much more feasibly.

The details of this program will be presented to the individual classes before Friday.

R.V.C.

Hedwig Brown

Before presenting my platform I would like to thank those who nominated me as R.V.C. representative to the Students' Executive Council. By working on the executive council, the representative student body of McGill, any student has a marvelous opportunity to strengthen the women's position on campus. If elected in this capacity I would do my utmost to represent fairly the women's student body as a whole and to express its opinion on all matters of importance.

By election to this position a candidate automatically becomes Vice-President of the Women's Union. As such I would try to work in full co-operation with the remainder of the executive. Furthermore, since the outstanding duty of the Vice-President is the management of elections for women, I would devote my efforts to upholding the highest standard possible along this line.

As the student elected to this position is the only woman elected directly to the executive council, she should be able to express the opinions of all the women. For the benefit of those who do not know me, I have listed below the extracurricular activities. I have participated in at McGill. This I hope will show my interests are diversified and not restricted to one phase of college life.

Debating Society (executive '44-'45), Basketball, Badminton, Archery; Sec. Treas. of the R.V.C. Resident Students' Society; Member of the Freshmen Reception Committee; Women's Union Committee (Teas and Dances).

C. Ree Hunter, B.A. III

First of all, I would like to thank all those who supported my nomination. In presenting my platform I would like to outline the duties of the R.V.C. Representative and how I believe they can be carried on most successfully.

The function of the R.V.C. Representative is to express the opinion of the women of the campus to the Council and to further their interests. It also involves another office — that of Vice-President of the Women's Union which automatically becomes effective next June.

To carry out successfully these two-fold duties it is necessary to have an adequate knowledge of the various campus organizations and especially of the women's activities in all sections. This can best be attained through the participation in as many of these as possible. Besides participation, the representative should always be keenly aware of the interests, attitudes and needs of the women on the campus so that she may make them known to the rest of the student body and to those in charge. With the resumption of intercollegiate activities and the lifting of most of the wartime restrictions, the coming year appears to offer many new and interesting activities.

Through participation, knowledge, and awareness, as outlined above, I would, if elected, do my best to further the interests and uphold the attitudes of the women in all the various fields, academic, athletic, cultural and social.

Previous Experience: President of First Year R.V.C. '43-'44, Freshie Reception Committee '44 and '45, Secretary of the Red Wing Society '44, Vice-President of Third Year R.V.C. '45-'46.

An Ex-Airman ridiculed this suggestion, claiming that it could only be a runway for the Glider Club. "Comes the day of the Revolution," said a well known campus radical, this mound will contain the shattered remains of local capitalists.

It is difficult to define, with any degree of terminological exactitude, the specific nature and purpose of the said pile, mass or accretion, intoned a 2nd Year Law student. It is just a mass of earth to level off the playing field, according to most reliable rumor.

Sam Carr, national organizer of the Labor Progressive Party, will address a meeting on Friday, Dec. 7th, at 5 p.m., in the Union Ballroom, on the topic, "The Colonial Peoples and Freedom."

Mr. Carr, an authority on international affairs, has just concluded a national tour, during which he has had an opportunity to discuss this topic with Canadians from coast to coast. He is, therefore, in an excellent position to both describe the struggle for liberation of the colonial peoples, as well as to suggest how we, as Canadians, can aid in their fight.

All students are invited to attend and participate in discussion of this vital question.

S.C.M.

The S.C.M. invites all students and their friends to attend its annual International Tea, to be held this Saturday at S.C.M. House, 3574 University Street. A variety of food from many lands will be served from 3 to 6 and from 8 to 10. The program which will be given at 4 and at 8 o'clock, will feature music and songs from China, Japan, Spain, the West Indies and many other countries. The Tea is an effort to show students and other visitors something of the cosmopolitan atmosphere so characteristic of McGill.

Tickets may be bought at the door or from S.C.M. members, at a cost of 35 cents. Proceeds from the tea will go towards the World Literary Campaign to provide libraries for villages in India.

The Recreation Committee announces that the Sunday afternoon open house and musicale will not be held this week because of Saturday's tea. Sunday afternoon programs will begin again after Christmas.

NEWMAN CLUB

Tickets for the dance on Friday night are available at the Tuck Shop. They may also be obtained at the door tomorrow night. The dance will be held in the Union Ballroom from 9 to 1, and will be both stag and drag. Bernie MacDougall will emcee, and Frank Modler's band will provide the music. The Grill Room will be open for refreshments, and during intermission there will be a sing-song with Frank Monahan at the piano.

CCF CLUB

The Debating Union has extended an invitation to the members of all political clubs to participate in the discussion tomorrow night.

The topic will be one of general interest to all CCFers—the worldwide trend to the left, and all wishing to take part in the discussion are welcome.

MALE CHORUS LINE

A male counterpart of the girl's chorus line of the Red and White Revue is being formed to give McGill men an opportunity of showing their dancing ability. Auditions will be held at 6 p.m. today in the Union Ballroom and the committee urges all interested male students to try out.

PLAY READING CLUB.

Some students have recently expressed interest in the formation of a play reading club. The proposed club is to be for the reading and discussion of plays and for the discussion of things dramatic. Ideally, the club will function for the purpose of giving members an opportunity to improve their play reading technique, of supplying a chance for students to experiment at play direction, and to foster generally dramatic appreciation, within the university.

Those interested are requested to leave their names, addresses, and phone numbers at the tuck shop, marked PLAY READING CLUB, and if a sufficiently large response is received, an organizational meeting will be held in the near future. It is emphasized that enrolment is by no means confined to those with dramatic experience, and all students interested are invited.

CHORAL SOCIETY

Attention basses. . . A special meeting for the benefit of basses only will be held this afternoon at 5 p.m. in Room 12, R.V.C. It is imperative that all men in this section of the choir turn out for this rehearsal, in addition to the regular meeting on Friday, in order that all intricate details in the music may be uniformly learned. Regular meetings on Mondays and Fridays are held in Divinity Hall.

RED & WHITE REVUE

Auditions for the male chorus line will be held today at 6 p.m. in the Union Ballroom.

A directors meeting will be held today at 1 p.m. in the Union Boardroom. The Costume Mistress and Make-up Supervisor are asked to attend.

All persons interested in singing in the forthcoming production who have not yet had a voice audition are asked to appear in the Union Ballroom between 1 and 3:30 p.m. today.
